2010-2011 Future Faculty Program Participants

Each academic year, fifteen award-winning graduate teaching assistants from across campus are selected to participate in the Future Faculty Program. This nationally recognized program is sponsored by the Dean of the Graduate School and coordinated by the Center for Teaching and Learning (CTL). Participants in the program are experienced teaching assistants who have been recognized at the institutional level for their outstanding teaching and are preparing for careers in higher education.

The Future Faculty Program participants began their fall semester by helping to plan and facilitate the University-wide TA Orientation. This event provides tools and resources to new and returning graduate teaching assistants in order to prepare them to begin teaching at UGA. Over 500 graduate students attended the event.

The program participants have continued to meet over the fall semester to discuss effective teaching techniques in order to foster student learning. While sharing resources and ideas with each other, they also take these ideas back to their departments to share through workshops and seminars. Additionally, the participants have been preparing teaching portfolios for submission to the graduate school through the Teaching Portfolio Program (see page 3 of this newsletter for more information about this program).

The participants have also interacted with experts from across campus who spoke about current and emerging topics in higher education, including Sherry

Clouser from the Center for Teaching and Learning, who combined an overview of Google Pages and eLC with ideas for how to use these technologies in the classroom.

In the Spring, the participants will continue to develop a deeper understanding of teaching and learning in higher education but will also concentrate on other areas of professional development, such as the academic job search, the transition from graduate student to professor, and course design. The program will culminate with a spring retreat to explore what it means to be a successful faculty member. Recipients of the Outstanding Teaching Assistant and nominees for the Excellence in Teaching Awards are invited to apply for next year's program. More information about the program can be found at: <http://www.ctl.uga.edu/teachingassistant/programs>.

Interdisciplinary Certificate in University Teaching

The Graduate School, in collaboration with the Center for Teaching and Learning, offers an Interdisciplinary Graduate Certificate in University Teaching. The goal of the Certificate is to provide doctoral and terminal professional degree students with a multifaceted program that supports the enhancement of the students' teaching skills, prepares them for future academic positions, and provides an academic credential that should enhance students' opportunities for academic employment.

Minimum requirements of the Certificate include teaching four sections, completing nine hours of course work related to university-level teaching, successfully creating a teaching portfolio, developing a teaching project that demonstrates creativity or innovation in teaching of a discipline, and demonstrating scholarship of teaching through preparation of a publication-ready manuscript or presentation of a teaching-related talk or poster at an appropriate professional meeting.

Receipt of the Certificate is documented on a student's official transcript and is also recognized in the Graduate School Commencement Ceremony booklet. Several recent graduates have indicated that the Certificate has been an excellent avenue for documenting additional skills and interests in teaching and has had a positive impact on job searches. For information about applying to the program, visit http://www.uga.edu/gradschool/academics/certificate\_teaching.html

The Center for Teaching and Learning is offering the following classes in support of the teaching certificate program.

GRSC 7770: Seminar on College Teaching

A course that fulfills TA Policy course requirements and is a prerequisite for the following classes, this course is designed to prepare teaching assistants for their roles in the University of Georgia classroom and for potential careers involving instruction at other institutions. It provides graduate teaching assistants with knowledge of pedagogical approaches, peer-reviewed practice teaching, and with available resources available to UGA instructional staff. Unlike departmental-specific GRSC 7770, sections of this course taught at CTL are interdisciplinary. For more information, contact Dr. Paul Quick (pauquick@uga.edu).

GRSC 7800: College Teaching and Student Learning

This interdisciplinary course offered each spring focuses on how undergraduates learn. Participants will learn a variety of factors that influence teaching and learning in an attempt to discover and define what it means to be an effective college teacher, and will also discuss theory, techniques, and strategies for helping undergraduates become active learners. For more information, contact Dr. Denise Domizi (dpinette@uga.edu).

GRSC 7900: Designing Courses for Significant Learning

This course, offered each fall, will give graduate students a foundation in course design grounded in strong pedagogical theory. Students will design or redesign a course in its entirety, beginning with their goals for their students and working through assessment to teaching and learning activities. For more information, contact Dr. Denise Domizi (dpinette@uga.edu).

EDHI 9040: Teaching with Technology in the College Classroom

EDHI9040, Teaching with Technology in the College Classroom, is an examination of instructional technology in the college classroom, on campus and online. The purpose of the course is to encourage participants to critically reflect on the use of instructional technologies in their fields and provide them with opportunities to develop skills in employing technology in the classroom. For more information, contact Dr. Sherry Clouser (sac@uga.edu).

Graduate School Teaching Portfolio Program

Since the spring semester of 2005, the Graduate School has sponsored the Teaching Portfolio Program. The purpose of the program is to encourage graduate students to document their teaching experiences at UGA in order to reflect upon and improve their teaching and to prepare them to present their teaching accomplishments on the job market. Many graduate students have found that preparing a teaching portfolio well before they begin their academic job searches has greatly helped them during the application process. Some even credit a teaching portfolio for helping them get their jobs!

Every semester, the Graduate School considers teaching portfolios for certification. Participants in the portfolio program not only get Graduate School recognition for their portfolios but also receive feedback from faculty members on their individual portfolios. Additionally, the teaching portfolio is the cornerstone for the Graduate School's Interdisciplinary Certificate in University Teaching. For more information about the portfolio program and to see sample portfolios, visit the CTL's website:

Teaching Portfolio Workshops

A series of three workshops will be offered to help graduate students create teaching portfolios for the Graduate School's Teaching Portfolio Program. Workshops will be held at the conference room of the Center for Teaching and Learning, which is located on the north side of the instructional plaza between the Psychology and Journalism buildings. For more information or to register, contact Matthew Lovelace, Assistant to TA Programs, at lovelace@uga.edu.

Session 1: Monday, 1/31/2011, 2:30-4:30 pm

An introduction to the Graduate School's Teaching Portfolio Program, followed by an overview of best practices in writing a teaching philosophy statement.

Session 2: Monday, 2/14/2011, 2:30-4:30 pm

In this session, teaching philosophy statements will be discussed and participants' drafts created since the previous workshop will be reviewed. Participants are asked to bring at least three copies of their statements for review, as well as select portfolio components, including a description of courses taught, sample student work, and teaching materials.

Session 3: Monday, 2/28/2011, 2:30-4:30 pm

This session will address the specific needs of those attending. Possible activities could include a critique of elements or of entire portfolios being readied for submission. Participants are asked to bring documents for review.
